November 6, 2017

We have begun the second quarter of this school year with continued enthusiasm for the work we are doing. Our students and teachers remain focused on doing the work. We believe that Parent Teacher conferences were a positive and successful experience. Please remember to connect with your child's teacher anytime you have a concern or question. There are about six weeks remaining before final grades are assigned for the semester. Continue to communicate with your child about their academic progress and what they are learning and doing in class.

PTO Meeting

On October 24th we had a PTO meeting where teachers from the math department and visual arts spoke to parents and answered questions, among other topics. This was a productive and useful conversation. While we always continue to encourage you to connect individually with teachers when there are questions or concerns, we would also like to encourage you to attend our next PTO general meeting on December 5th in the Conference Hall. These meetings are open to all and we would love to see as many parents as possible at the meetings.

Lockers

We have had questions about locker location and how students are assigned them. We assign these lockers and their locations based on where students are for their midday classes. There are no current plans to make changes to the way these lockers are assigned, as this has managed to be the most effective placement of the lockers for our students.

Questions about a class?

At KISMS, we want to urge all parents to contact teachers if there are questions or concerns pertaining to any of the classes their child is taking. All of the teachers will gladly respond as soon as they are able to any emails or phone calls. Please remember that communication is key to a successful school system.

Thank you for your continued support of our students and teachers. We look forward to a strong finish to this first semester.

Sincerely,
